

press pass
home	about Fermilab	contacting Fermilab	inquiring minds	visiting Fermilab	education	search for physicists	Fermilab now	public events	FermiNews	Fermilab at work	press pass	help

LHC Magnet photos for downloading

When publishing any of the photos on this page please credit them to Fermilab. Click on thumbnail photos for medium resolution images. Download high resolution images by right clicking on high resolution image links.

Members of Fermilab's Technical Division gathered for a send-off celebration for an advanced superconducting magnet (orange) bound for the Large Hadron Collider at CERN.

High Resolution Image

Dr. Raymond L. Orbach, director of the Department of Energy's Office of Science, congratulated a Fermilab audience for keeping the U.S. at the forefront of superconducting magnet technology.

High Resolution Image

Fermilab-LHC Project manager James Kerby, Fermilab Director Michael Witherell, DOE Office of Science Director Raymond L. Orbach, and US-LHC Project Manager James Strait with the first Fermilab-built superconducting focusing magnet, destined for the Large Hadron Collider at CERN, in Geneva, Switzerland.

High Resolution Image

Fermilab-LHC Project manager James Kerby, Fermilab Director Michael Witherell, DOE Office of Science Director Raymond L. Orbach, and US-LHC Project Manager James Strait with the first Fermilab-built superconducting focusing magnet, destined for the Large Hadron Collider at CERN, in Geneva, Switzerland.

High Resolution Image

Shipping company employees prepare LHC quadrupole magnet for crating.

High Resolution Image

Shipping company employees begin crating LHC quadrupole bound for CERN in Geneva.

High Resolution Image

Shipping company employee Marian Rocinski stencils address on packing crate for superconducting LHC magnet.

High Resolution Image

Shipping company employees prepare to load crated superconducting LHC magnet from Fermilab bound for CERN.

High Resolution Image

High Resolution Image

Shipping company employees begin to load first LHC Magnet on a truck for shipment to CERN.

High Resolution Image

High Resolution Image

Bon voyage! First LHC magnet prepares to leave Fermilab bound for CERN.

High Resolution Image

Return to LHC Magnet Press Release

last modified 5/13/2004 email Fermilab

Security, Privacy, Legal

